

The DGGF International Meeting

The DGGF International Meeting is a convention of quality management professionals in the chemical and pharmaceutical industries. Every autumn, it brings together several hundred experts from industrial companies, contract research organizations, hospitals and government agencies. The meeting's wide range of topics allows attendees to update their professional knowledge, to gather valuable ideas for their day-to-day work, and to benefit from excellent net-working opportunities.

On the day before the DGGF International Meeting we offer a Preconference Training. This popular course – held in German – aims at professionals new to the field of Good Laboratory Practice (GLP) and will introduce students to the conditions, the set-up, the sequences and the documentation of GLP-studies.

The German Society for Good Research Practice (DGGF) is Germany's largest, and Europe's second largest, association dedicated to quality management in the chemical and pharmaceutical industries. Our work focuses on assuring optimum quality with regard to research and development of chemical, pharmaceutical and agrochemical substances. Good research practice helps in assuring high quality and safety through the finished product – and hence, for man and the environment.

Program 2014

Program 2014

Key-Note Speaker

Leo Martin

The Lecturer: Leo Martin, a criminalist, analyzes human behavior from his professional background and transfers the relevant behavioral patterns to leadership, sales, and personal life situations. The audience can expect exciting insights from his professional perspective.

The Presentation: A captivating mix of sound professional facts and interactive elements. Leo Martin reveals the success factors for effective communication, i.e. our subconscious patterns of thoughts and actions. Learn the secrets of fair and appreciative communication and how to apply and value it.

Most papers will be presented in German. Simultaneous translation (German/English and English/German) will be available in the GxP, GCP and GLP sessions.
